AUDITORS' REPORT.

THE undersigned, Auditors of Accounts of the town of Quincy for the year ending February 1, 1874, hereby report that they have examined the books of the Selectmen, Town Treasurer, and Treasurer of the Woodward Fund, and find them correctly kept, with proper vouchers for all payments made.

It will be noticed that the account of repairs of Highways does not specify the different districts in which the payments have been made, as has been the custom in former years. The reason of this change in the report is that the district accounts have not been kept separately during the year.

The town has made large appropriations for town expenses in years past, and the increase of expenses is out of proportion to the increase of population or wealth. We therefore recommend that the town now commence a system of economy by reducing the appropriations in each department to the lowest figure consistent with its efficiency.

JOSEPH W. ROBERTSON,
D. HOWARD BILLS,
ISAIAH WHITE,
JOHN Q. A. FIELD,
ELEAZER FREDERICK.

SELECTMENS' REPORT.

ALTHOUGH it has not been the custom of late years for the Selectmen to make any report or recommendation to the town, we deem it advisable, as the custodians of its financial matters, and as better acquainted with its affairs than other persons, to bring to the attention of the voters such matters as may seem to demand their attention.

It will be noticed by the Auditors' Report that the town debt has largely increased. We wish to state that this increase is not wholly due to the ordinary expenses, but mainly to the amount of $28,249 18 above appropriation, paid for new school-houses, ordered by votes of the town at regular meetings, and to the amount of $3,638 09 above appropriation, expended, during the present year, on Newport Avenue, ordered by the County Commissioners. These were extraordinary expenses, which will probably not occur again for some years, and it should be expected that the condition of the town will be much better at the end of the next year.

As regards the matter (mentioned in the Auditors' Report) of showing the expenses of the Highways under the head of the various districts, we would say that as the town makes its appropriation for Highways in one sum, with no directions as to where it shall be expended, we unanimously agreed that it was no more desirable to keep the repairs of Highways under separate districts, than that any other expense should be so kept. If, however, the town wishes the Surveyors to so keep their accounts, we would recommend a vote to that effect. The excess of expenditures on repairs of Highways over the appropriation was partly caused by the amounts paid out for work on Knox's Hill and Souther's Hill. The cost of the former ($585 28) was incurred because of the crossing of the Street by the Old Colony Railroad, by which it was left in an unsafe state, which it was necessary to remedy. The town will have a claim on the Railroad Company for the expense of putting it in a safe condition. The work on Souther's Hill, amounting to about $1,200 00, was entered upon because it had been the opinion of many that it should be done, and in view of the prevailing impression that the Quincy Point Horse Railroad was soon to be built and would be a great benefit to the town, it was thought that the cutting down could be done at less cost and more conveniently before the track was laid.

The expenses of the Fire Department have exceeded the appropriation, on account of the purchase of needed hose and the increase of the pay of the department after the estimate of expenses was made.

In conclusion, in view of the large and constantly increasing transactions of the town, we consider it our duty to remind it that it should follow the same rule which any business man would adopt. If it wants its work well done, it must elect as officers men who are particularly fitted for the duties which they are to perform. It is important for the interests of the town that its affairs should be managed by practical men, with practical ideas of the duties they undertake, and that matter should be looked after in the selection of its officers.

PUBLIC LIBRARY OF QUINCY.

THE Trustees of the Public Library ask leave to offer their Third Annual Report, relative to the progress and to the present condition of that institution.

The Financial Statement of the Treasurer, annexed to this report, gives the receipts and expenditures for the year ending in February, with the balance of moneys remaining in his hands at that date. From this it appears that the total receipts have been $5,075 93, and the expenditure, $3,489 84, leaving in the Treasury a balance of $1,586 09. From this sum, however, are to be deducted the various bills due from the Library and approved at the meeting of the Trustees on the 4th inst., amounting to $472 69. The amount, $750 00, appropriated for a suitable catalogue of the library, as stated in the last Annual Report, has not been expended, and to this end also a further appropriation of two hundred dollars was added at the last meeting of the board. Making these deductions, it will be seen that the sum of $163 40 will be at the disposal of the Trustees at the opening of the new financial year.

The number of days during which the Library has been open during the year ending 1st February, 1874, was 306. In the month of May it was found expedient to make a slight change in the evening hours, closing at 8 P.M. for five days of the week, instead of four, as had been the previous custom. This change, so far as the Trustees are informed, has caused no public inconvenience.

The statistics of circulation and of the use of the reading-room are not quite so large as for the previous year, notwithstanding the increased number of registered borrowers. During the year the circulation has numbered 40,175 volumes, against 44,755 of the previous year, — an average per library day of 131 issues, being 14 less per day than the previous average. Of this distribution 50 per cent. was fiction, 29 per cent. of works written expressly for the young, and 21 per cent. of books of the more solid classes. It is to be noticed that this last per centage is precisely that given in the last report. The use of the more important books in the Library will probably increase in a marked degree as soon as the new catalogue shall have made known to the town the value of its collection.

The largest number of volumes issued on any one day, and the largest since the opening of the library, was on the 22d of March, 1873, amounting to 462; the smallest on the 16th of August, counting 26 only.

During the year the reading-room has been used by 7,722 visitors, of whom 31 per cent were adults, and 25 per cent females.

The number of applicants to borrow books, registered during the year, has been 495 — which, added to the 2,202, previously enumerated, makes the total of accounts opened for this purpose 2,697.

The Library now contains 8,177 volumes and 343 pamphlets. Of these volumes 886 have been added during the year; 78 volumes and 140 pamphlets were donations.

Of the 91,980 books circulated since the opening of the Library but four are known to be missing, two having disappeared during the past year. This last loss is supposed to have arisen from the carelessness of the borrowers, who had removed from the town without fulfilling their obligations to the Library by the return of the books intrusted to them under the conditions to which they had subscribed. No books are reported as having been wantonly or wilfully injured.

The delay in printing the catalogue has arisen from the unavoidable engagements and absence of the member of the Board who is especially charged with the oversight and arrangement of its preparation for the press. With the large improvements which have recently taken place in this form of literary labor, it is expected that the volume, giving a key to the contents of this carefully selected library, will also include such alphabetical classification of subjects as shall materially aid every student and visitor of the collection in their search for the volumes required for their instruction or amusement. The purchases, during the past year, have made the Library stronger and fuller in various departments of knowledge, which fact will amply compensate for the inconvenience of the delay in printing.

The temporary deposit of the Library in the Adams Academy by the consent of its Trustees will shortly terminate. It has been found that other convenient quarters can, without difficulty, be obtained in positions quite as central as that now occupied. The expenses of rent, gas-fitting, heating, furniture and removal will, however, require an additional appropriation from the town for the ensuing year, though the Trustees see no occasion for anticipating any large permanent increase of the annual cost of the library. It is perhaps unnecessary to state that the amount heretofore appropriated for rent of a new hall has not been used.

With a new catalogue, and with the removal of the Library to large and more convenient quarters, it may naturally be expected that the circulation of the books and the usefulness of the Institution will be increased in a considerable measure. But in a town, the inhabitants of which are scattered over so many square miles, no point is so central as to be perfectly and equally convenient to the whole population.

During the past summer the Library lost the services of Miss Hails, the Librarian, who resigned her position on account of declining health. Her faithful and devoted attention to the duties of her office, from the foundation of the collection, were fully recognized by the Trustees. Her assistant, Miss Bumpus, declining deserved promotion to the office, Miss Cora I. Young was appointed Librarian, and entered upon the duties on the 1st of July last, which she has since fulfilled to the acceptance of the Board.

In conclusion, for the expense of care and maintenance of the Library, for the purchase of books during the coming year, for the rent of new rooms, and for the exceptional expense of adapting the same to the requirements of the public in furniture, heating, and lighting, the Trustees would recommend an appropriation by the town of three thousand, five hundred dollars ($3,500).

Respectfully submitted,

WILLIAM W. GREENOUGH,

SECOND ANNUAL REPORT OF THE MANAGERS OF THE ADAMS ACADEMY.

THE school continues under the charge of Professor W. R. Dimmock, LL.D., and the managers have nothing to take back from the commendation given to him in their first report. They fully believe from this past year's experience that the success thus far attending the undertaking is altogether due to his faithful and judicious discharge of his duties in this trust.

It is now passing through the second term of the second year. Last year, the number of scholars was twenty-eight. This year, it is sixty-one. If this rate of increase were to continue for two years, it would more than fill all the space provided by the building. Even as it is, there appears to be an absolute necessity of requiring the space now occupied by the town library, in order fully to carry out the order of the recitations.

The chief object of the donor, in this trust, seems to have been the laying a solid foundation for early and thorough instruction, introductory to the several higher forms of education required by the advance of the country. To that end he made conveyances of certain plots of land, from the rents and profits accruing from which he directed that a school-house should be put up at a certain place. That object has been attained, but it took a period of more than fifty years' careful accumulation of the receipts before it could be done.

And now that it is done, if he had contemplated that school to be supported by the rents and profits accruing from his lands alone, it would take all of fifty years more to accumulate before the necessary means could be obtained. At this moment there are no funds adequate to do more than defray the charges incident to the care of the building, the furniture, and perhaps a moderate support to the teaching, of one person.

It becomes necessary to understand then that if this Academy, on the scale contemplated by its founder, is to be carried on in good faith, it must receive, at least for many years to come, its means of sustaining the high class of instruction desired from other sources than those belonging to the trust.

Already the enlarged number of scholars exceeds the powers of a single man to teach the variety of lessons to a variety of classes. There must be assistants well qualified to act under the directions of the principal, who must be properly remunerated or they will not stay. And in the exact proportion that the number of scholars increases, and the variety of instruction multiplies, will the demand for more instructors, and a correspondingly efficient apparatus, also increase.

Of the sixty-one boys now receiving instruction at this institution, eleven belong to the town, and fifty come from other places, some of them at a very great distance. By a vote passed by the town the scholars belonging to the town are to be educated at this Academy free of all charge.

The practical effect of this vote is to make the parents of the fifty boys from abroad pay not only for their own education, but likewise for the town boys. It is somewhat doubtful, to say the least of it, whether those parents, when they come to know this fact, will be so ready to send their children as they would be if all had been placed on an equal footing. And inasmuch as the highest number which can be received in the Academy building is one hundred and thirty, it might easily happen that in the proportion in which the town boys increase, who pay nothing, those from out of town, who supply the chief support of the instruction, must be excluded. Hence the means of supplying the compensation to high-class teachers would be diminishing in the ratio of the increase of attendance of the boys at home. This would seem scarcely to be just to strangers, who are disposed to place confidence in the high management of the school, or even creditable to the liberality of the town in appearing to wish to educate their own boys entirely at the expense of those strangers.

This difficulty is likely to be aggravated by the removal of the town library from the rooms which are needed by the expansion of the school. At present the town defrays the expenses of lighting and heating and care of the building by way of consideration for the use of those rooms. But so soon as they are vacated, this additional charge must be defrayed from the narrow funds of the Trust itself. This again will cause a very considerable deduction from the means of defraying the charges of education. It is not unlikely that a time may come when, by the increase in value of the lands belonging to the Trust, the resources of the Academy will be sufficient to educate boys without charge. This result is much to be wished for. But it cannot be done at present to any extent without creating difficulties that must materially impair the further prospects of success.

The managers have felt it a duty respectfully to submit these views of the injurious effect to the school of the vote of the town, which appears to have been passed without adequate information of the true state of the facts. There are as yet no means sufficient to maintain the school on a proper footing without more or less of charge to the scholar. The alternative is to reduce the system to so low a grade that it will no longer be an object of attraction to persons from abroad, and when that happens it would equally cease to be desirable to the parents of those at home to send their children free.

There may indeed be some exceptional cases in which the admission of youths of promise in the town might be positively barred from the absolute inability of their parents to meet even a moderate charge. Should such cases arise they might be provided for by vesting in the managers a power to remit the charge if, after examination, they should appear to be deserving of exception. All of which is respectfully submitted.

ENGINEERS' REPORT.

To the Selectmen of Quincy :

GENTLEMEN,—I most respectfully submit the following report :—

FORCE OF THE DEPARTMENT.

The Department is under the control of a Chief and four Assistant Engineers.

APPARATUS.

Four hand engines with hose-carriages, one four-wheeled hose-carriage and one hook and ladder carriage, all in the best of order and condition, and manned by volunteers. The companies are nearly all full.

HOUSES.

The houses of the several companies are all in the best of repair and condition, and I know of no repairs needed on any of them the ensuing year.

HOSE.

There are belonging to the Department about 1,500 feet of good hose that can be relied upon, and about 1,000 feet that are almost useless in case of fire, and we would recommend that the town purchase, without delay, 2,000 feet of new hose for the use of the department, believing that about that number of feet would be required in case a large fire should break out in the centre or south part of the town. I would also state that the citizens of the Centre and South Districts have, by subscription, bought and placed in Mr. William Pantan's shop a force-pump which will force water to at least four of your reservoirs, and which will consequently save the town a very great expense in filling them. All we need is enough hose to do the work with.

RESERVOIRS.

They are all in good condition, and two new ones are being built, one at the junction of Adams and Hancock Streets, which is almost ready for use, and the other on Washington Street, about half way from the Stone Meeting-house to the Niagara Engine-house.

All of which I herewith submit to your honorable Board.

WASHINGTON M. FRENCH,

Chief Engineer of Fire Department.

REPORT OF SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE, in entering upon the performance of the closing duty of their School year, are glad to be able to congratulate the people of Quincy upon the satisfactory general character of the results which they have to report.

While there have been no striking alterations in the main system of management, no radical innovation in method of instruction, nor considerable change in the style of teachers, a fair, even, and well-distributed improvement has been noted in most of the departments of study.

The recent examinations of the schools by the Committee certainly indicated that, as compared with previous years, there had been no deterioration in them. The Willard School appeared much better than it did a year ago, — the Coddington did not appear so well, — the others bore indications of improvement, perhaps ; but, as a rule, the Committee saw nothing which leads them to modify the opinion expressed in their last annual report, to the effect that, as regards instruction, “a point has been reached which is near the natural term of such force as our present system of schooling is calculated to exert.” At the same time it is to be remembered that, as compared with many years ago, the tests applied to our schools have much increased in severity. The new principle of conducting the examinations introduced by the Committee a year ago, under which a single and the same branch of the studies pursued is in the examinations of all the schools assigned to each member of the Committee, has also been pursued this year. During the examinations, the schools are thus taken wholly out of the hands of their instructors and into those of the Committee. Under these circumstances a mere education of "veneering" is sure to reveal its false character,—it is wholly impossible to prepare classes for a "show off." The examinations, therefore, now at least reveal as a whole the real results of our schooling. Nor do the Committee think that these results are less creditable than they would have seemed at any time in the previous history of the town, had the schools been subjected to the same test. They do not show all that we might desire they should ; but they do show much, and what they do show is there : there is at least no parade of results which have no reality in existence.

The persistent injunctions of the Committee, cordially and faithfully enforced for the most part by the instructors, have had a manifest influence in diminishing the dependence of both pupil and teacher upon the text-book. But it is still too great.

The same principle has been insisted upon with wearisome reiteration by us and by our predecessors for years in the general course of study, and not without results. But it is easy to teach by rote, and it is quicker to learn by rule, and there are many to require attention, and time is short, so that the problem is not quite simple. While, therefore, all should try to apply the best methods, so far as they are applicable to our circumstances, it is only fair to recognize the inherent difficulties which the school system at present in use itself presents to a thorough adoption of such a careful and patient process of education. It would involve, indeed, quite a radical revolution in the use of the text-book, relegating it as much as possible to the position of an occasional aid and convenient reference. The time for such a change is not yet come. However cheerfully borne, the burden of taxation for school purposes is not light. There is a necessity for economy in the expenditure of our teaching force. We must distribute our fund somewhat thinly over a wide surface, in order to obtain the largest average result from a great number. While this is the case, it is not fair to expect from extraordinary exertions of teachers results which the system pursued is not calculated to produce. Probably the great organic reform of the future, in our common schools, will be the systematic giving of a much greater amount of special attention to each individual mind to be developed.

And just so far as a greatly increased amount of teaching, time, and energy can be applied to the individual scholar, while the lively emulation of a large class and the strict and impartial discipline of a large public school are retained, do we think that we may now look for larger returns and better results.

The Committee have deemed it desirable, during the past year, to definitely fix the responsibility for the general care of the buildings and yards, and oversight of the conduct and discipline of the scholars in each subdivision of the town, upon the head master. In effect, each of the gatherings of pupils attending school in the same or neighboring buildings, and designed to follow the course of study through the different grades, constitute one school, and should be under one general supervision, which should also regulate, for the general convenience, the subordinate details of management.

The school houses which were ordered by the town to be built at Wollaston Heights and North Quincy, during the past year, have been completed, and are now in use. They are understood to give entire satisfaction, and to be well adapted to the convenient and efficient prosecution of the work for which they were prepared.

The large addition, likewise, which was ordered to the Willard School building has been completed and occupied. Although the capacity of the old building was thought to be nearly doubled by this alteration, and three new schools have been organized and established since the change, yet the increase in population of that flourishing part of our township is so rapid that they are now all full and in efficient operation.

The town has heretofore given authority to the Committee to purchase, if practicable, the lots of land belonging to the heirs of the late William S. Morton, adjoining the Coddington School lot; but, the interposition of legal and other delays having prevented an actual completion of the bargain, it is desirable that the authority to purchase may be renewed to the Committee.

Further than this, the Committee are happy to say that they shall not be obliged to ask for any considerable unusual appropriation for the next year.

All our children are believed to be now comfortably provided with good schooling, and to be enjoying reasonable privileges for education. It must remain in large measure with themselves and their parents to decide how diligently these privileges shall be improved.

Such assistance as your Committee can afford, the town may rest assured, shall not be wanting.

Particular attention has recently been given by the instructors and the Committee to all cases of unexplained absence from school. The law on that subject was amended and altered by the last Legislature, and made much more effective. Until the present year, it has been impossible to deal vigorously with truants, as there was no proper place for their separation from other scholars and their detention. This difficulty has now been obviated. The recent legislation has put it in the power of towns not having any truant school at their disposal to send their habitual truants to the Reform School at Monson. The new By-laws, passed at the last annual town meeting, have also been approved and registered. In this way, the whole machinery has at last, and for the first time, been made effective. The Committee do not propose to lose time in putting it in motion. Several cases of very confirmed truancy, exercising a most pernicious influence on the children of entire districts, have been brought by the instructors to their notice. The truant officers prescribed by law either have been appointed, or will be immediately, and it will then only remain to select those cases in which an enforcement of the statutes would seem likely to produce the largest and most beneficial results, and to proceed at once in the course prescribed by law.

On behalf of the Committee,

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS,
Chairman.
